Is it or are it? Go, go, go? If a verb is singular or plural it depends on any of a complicated set of factors. Here is a list of rules for the subject-verb agreement (or "These are some rules ..."): 1. Use verbs that agree with a subject, not with a noun that is part of a modified phrase or clause between verb and subject: "The egg pot is boiling in the stove." The film is comedy, but "businesses are my favorite kind of movie." Some, "and" Things (any, all, nothing), and similar: Nor is it correct! (and, as in rule number 1, the presence of a modifier is irrelevant: "No one of them is correct." "All the paint dries." 6. Use plural verbs with accounting nouns that T follows an indefinite pronoun: "All nails are spilled on the floor," plural verbs or singular verbs, depending on the form of the noun closest to the verb, with compound subjects that include or: "Whether the dog or cats are responsible for the disaster." Cats or dog are responsible for the disaster. It is also technically correct, but it is uncomfortable. 9. Use singular verbs with inverted themes that include singular nouns: "Why is my hat out in the rain?" Use plural verbs with inverted subjects (those who start with the improper there instead of the actual subject) that include plural nouns: "There are several hats outside in the rain." Use singular or plural verbs with I'm not sure. Agreement in Standard English (1-4) 1. Subjects and verbs must agree in number. This is the cornerstone rule that forms the background of the concept. The dog grows when he is angry. The dogs grow when they are angry. 2. Don't get confused by the words that come between the subject and verb; they do not affect agreement. The dog, who is chewing on my jeans, is usually very good. 3. Prepositional phrases between the subject and verb usually do not affect agreement. The colors of the rainbow are beautiful. 4. When sentences start with "There" the subject will always be placed after the verb, so care needs to be taken to identify it correctly. There is a problem with the balance sheet. Here are the papers you requested. Day 1 eAA Determine whether or not the following sentences are correct. If they are incorrect, make the necessary adjustments. 1. There are extra butter in the refrigerator. 2. My mother, along with the other representatives, are going to the convention. 3.
